Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 4-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Weiss (US Patent 6,164,645), and further in view of Bonsall et al. (US Patent 5,636,101).

Claim 1: Weiss teaches of a gaming machine comprising a cabinet, a display device provided in the cabinet and configured to display game images (figure 1, elements 10 & 20), Further Weiss teaches of a part provided in the gaming machine; and an attachment device configured to attach the part on the cabinet (figure 1, elements 57, 58, 60, 61). Weiss however fails to teach of a hook provided on the cabinet.

Bonsall, an analogous art, teaches of a hook provided on one of the part and the cabinet, where the hook is configured to attach the part on the cabinet and a hook hole extending vertically and formed on a remaining one of the part and the cabinet, wherein the part is fixed onto the cabinet (figures 2-4 and col. 4: 45-54, col. 5: 14-16, 28-34). It would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art at the item of the invention to have modified Weiss to include an easily removable hook system for the display device thus making it easy to remove for repairs or replace (col. 2: 10-18)

Claim 4: Bonsall teaches of the gaming machine which includes the hook being sized and adapted to be received in the hook hole in a manner so that the hook and the projection contact each other to vertically support the display device (figures 2-4, wherein the screen is vertically placed in the hook 72, such that the hook the projection contact each other to vertically display the display device, as shown).

Claim 5: Bonsall teaches a display control device and wherein the attachment device includes a threaded screw and wherein the display control device includes a screw hole such that when the attachment device attaches the display control device on the cabinet, wherein the screw extends into the cabinet thereby pressing display control device against the cabinet (col. 4: 48-54, figures 5-6).

Claim 6: Bonsall teaches wherein the cabinet includes a door (figure 2-3), wherein the part includes a display control device configured to control the display device, the display control device including a flat display control board, and wherein the display control device and the display device are provided on the door (figure 5-6, elements 78).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1, 4-6 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Examiner has cited particular columns and line numbers in the references as applied to the claims above for the convenience of the applicant. Although the specified citations are representative of the teachings in the art and are applied to the specific limitations within the individual claim, other passages and figures may apply as well. It is respectfully requested from the applicant, in preparing the responses, to fully consider the references in entirety as potentially teaching all or part of the claimed invention, as well as the context of the passage as taught by the prior art or disclosed by the examiner.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. See attached References Cited Page.
